

Notice if you draw a line down the middle of each mountain peak, they are not the same on either side. This creates a more interesting mountain formation.

Observe the mountains have shadows all on the left sides and the light source comes from the right. Note also that lesser crosshatched lines allow for a lighter shaded area and more crossed lines result in a darker shaded area.