FDA Approves Booster Vaccine for Pfizer

On September 22, 2021, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration authorized a single dose booster shot for the Pfizer vaccine only. Studies suggest that protection against the COVID-19 virus may decrease several months after receiving the Pfizer vaccine. This lower effectiveness is likely due to a combination of waning immunity, the greater infectiousness of the Delta variant and changes in exposure to the virus.

CDC and California Department of Public Health recommends the following groups should receive a booster at least 6 months after the 2nd dose of the Pfizer vaccine:

- Individuals who are age 65 and older
- Long-term care residents who are 18 years or older
- Individuals aged 50-64 years with underlying medical conditions or are at increased risk due to social inequity

The following groups may also consider receive a booster at least 6 months after the 2nd dose:

- 18-49 and have an underlying medical condition
- 18-64 and work or live in a high-risk setting (like a shelter)

CDC defines high risk jobs as:

- First Responders (healthcare workers, EMS, firefighters and law enforcement)
- Education staff (Teachers, support staff, daycare workers)
- Food and agriculture workers
- Corrections workers
- Public Transit
- Grocery store workers
